Club career Chen Qingdong started his professional football career in 2003 when he joined Shandong Luneng. After the season was over, Chen decided to join Guangzhou R&F where he made his league debut on September 17, 2006 in a game against Liaoning Whowin. However, it was not until 2007 that he would finally establish himself within the team when he would gradually gain his confidence within the team. During the 2007 season, he would often play in the right-wing position as the club won the league and cup double. In 2009, Chen was named as one of the Chinese Football Association Young Player of the Year. On May 26, 2010 Chen transferred to Chongqing Lifan for a fee of €6 million. He returned to Shandong Luneng in July 2013. International career Chen won his first international call up in 2006. He received his first cap in a friendly against South Korea on August 1, 2006, in a game that was played in Ulanbataar, Central Asia. During the 2006 AFC Challenge Cup he was named as the most valuable player. Chen was also given the MVP award at the AFF Championship that same year. He would continue to receive call ups for the Chinese national team. Chen's biggest success was when he was selected as a member of the Chinese team that won the 2011 AFC Asian Cup. During the tournament, Chen scored in a 2-0 defeat of Japan in the final. International goals Scores and results list China's goal tally first. I'm using a background image for the entire page but that image is too large, and the page height is too short. I'd like to be able to shrink the image height, but the photo's background-position needs to center it at the top of the page. The photo is a 960px square. The height of the article in the is 980px

(didn't include padding or margins). I'd like to select the entire photo for the background-position so that the background is set to top: 10px; and the left and right margins are 0. Is there a way to do this? A: What you're looking for is background-size, and here's the W3C documentation. This declaration would set the size of your image to 100% of the document: background-size: 100%; To position it in the middle of the screen, use background-position: center;. A: Since you're asking for a background image, the best option is to make it a background for the , and then change the content for the page to occupy the height of your image. That way you don't need any particular background attributes on any elements. So in your markup, set the body to have a background image of your photo, and then place an empty div or span inside your body with the same background image. and then in your CSS, body.photo-background { height: 100%; } A: I have a variable width image with no margins or paddings. I change the background-position, and if it needs to be centered, then I have a shortcoming div after the image in the html. Then I just define the c
