Bain's Double Whammy Editor's Note: This article is more than a year old. Please help keep this community civil. Last month, when the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse complained that another firm, InVision Research, had put it out of business, InVision said that Price Waterhouse was being unfair. Specifically, InVision said that the accounting firm and its partner were an accounting firm and not a consulting firm, although their billing suggested otherwise. InVision went on to say that it was puzzled why the accounting firm was getting the billing because it had not produced the kind of consulting reports that InVision wanted. The accounting firm pointed out that it did a whole lot more for InVision than produce consulting reports. It filed the InVision reports with the SEC. It produced the auditing work. It handled the payables/receivables. It did the payroll. And on and on. This prompted InVision to respond that it wasn't saying that Price Waterhouse had been unfair to it, or that it was accusing Price Waterhouse of stealing. No, InVision said, it was claiming that Price Waterhouse had been unfair to it by reporting to the SEC that it was a consulting firm when it actually was an accounting firm. InVision's remarks prompted the head of the accounting firm to complain to the SEC and the accounting firm issued a statement to the press that pointed out that it had not done any consulting for InVision. As you might guess, InVision

Bernie Sanders Bernie Sanders Kenosha will be a good bellwether in 2020 Biden's fiscal program: What is the likely market impact? McConnell accuses Democrats of sowing division by 'downplaying progress' on election security MORE (D-VT) hosted by SPUC (Social Provisions Union) Vice President of Communications Marjorie Dannenfelser said the following about the Democrat Party and Sen. Sanders: "It is an extraordinary achievement that a political party which has been on the political right for decades will go from less than 2% of the vote in 1984 to 51% of the vote in 2016." The video of her shocking remarks that went viral has Sanders defending himself and the Democrat Party against Dannenfelser's horrific remarks: The left is a cancer on this country and has plagued us ever since the JFK assassination - Then they murdered Lincoln - Now they are attempting to assassinate the only progressive President to run against the Dreck-Junk-Mainstream Media Party in 2016 - Bernie Sanders is their political target. They use lies to destroy political targets of the Democrat Party. Bernie Sanders has experienced the power of the Democrat Party's hatred of President Trump and his movement. The Democrat Party has no defense for Bernie's impact on the voter's since President Trump's election. No one opposes President Trump more than Bernie Sanders and his movement.
