surgery]. We evaluated whether endourological surgery is related to intrarenal hematoma occurrence. The subjects of this retrospective study were patients who underwent endourological surgery for urolithiasis during 1993 to 2002. Intrarenal hematoma occurred in 11 of 110 patients (10%), and there was no case of intrarenal hematoma during endoscopic management of the renal pelvis but a case occurred during endoscopic management of the caliceal dilatation site. In contrast, although 6 of 80 patients (8%) who underwent open surgery developed intrarenal hematoma, it was rarely seen after endourological management in our opinion. The incidence of intrarenal hematoma was small in endourological surgery compared with that in open surgery. Endourological surgery for nephrolithiasis is a low-risk procedure for development of intrarenal hematoma.
