I am completely new to the world of arduino, and I am currently trying to work with the SD card on arduino. However, I am stuck with the error with the In function 'void setup()':: Cannot convert 'int' to 'const char*' in assignment I am trying to convert the bytes read to a char so that I can print out the characters in the SD card. This is what my code looks like: int input = 0; char valueA = '0'; char valueB = '0'; char valueC = '0'; char valueD = '0'; void setup() { Serial.begin(9600); } void loop() { if (Serial.available()) { input! = 0} { // do something } } What can I do to fix this? A: The problem is that you are trying to assign a value of type int to char which has narrower range. Solution is to declare variables of type uint8_t valueA = 0; uint8_t valueB = 0; uint8_t valueC = 0; uint8_t valueD = 0; Hello everyone! This is a work in progress, a bit of a prototype (I say that in the most unfavorable of ways, but that's exactly what it is) to be used as basis to design a highly customizable (and beautiful) 3D printed d0c515b9f4
